Member feedback from the ASIS CSO Center Huddle (Jan. 4, 2024) on:

Security Cultures for a Great Workplace and Business Success

The next evolution of the corporate security profession

"John is innovating and disrupting how security departments are perceived by embracing and promoting the importance of human connection to create the right security culture".

"When it comes to Workplace Violence, we as physical security leaders often focus on reactive measures and compliance. John Rodriguez gave a fantastic presentation that focused on leveraging soft skills to build and maintain a far more effective and inclusive Workplace Violence program. Highly recommended to all those leaders who pride themselves on using all the available tools in their toolbox to better safeguard their company's people, assets, and reputation."

"John Rodriguez provided thought-provoking insights into building a security culture in today's workplace. CSOs were reminded that today's employees deserve - and increasingly demand - empathy, compassion, and a caring tone from the top."

"Thank you for presenting today at the CSO Center, great conversation and it was extremely helpful to hear your insights. The validation that we are taking our security program down the right track was key. You hit on so many points that are critical to success!"
